2025-08-04 16:27:52,677 - INFO - Sending prompt to Ollama: qwen2.5-coder:32b | Payload size : 54822 | prompt : You are an expert in web automation. Given the HTML content of a webpage, identify all interactable elements (e.g., input fields, buttons, checkboxes, radio buttons, dropdowns) and provide their identifiers, categories, XPaths, and CSS selectors in JSON format. Focus only on elements that can be interacted with (e.g., <input>, <button>, <select>). The output must be a JSON array of objects, each with the following fields: - identifier: A meaningful name for the element (e.g., 'username', 'submit_button'). Use id, name, placeholder, or label text if available. - category: The type of element (e.g., 'input_field', 'button', 'checkbox', 'radio', 'dropdown'). - xpath: The XPath to locate the element. - css_selector: The CSS selector to locate the element. Ensure XPaths and CSS selectors are precise and unique. Avoid non-interactable elements like , , or static text. Return only the JSON array, without any additional text or markdown. Example output:
    "identifier": "username",
    "category": "input_field",
    "xpath": "//input[@id='username' or @name='username']",
    "css_selector": "input#username"
    "identifier": "submit_button",

    "category": "button",
    "xpath": "//button[@type='submit']",
    "css_selector": "button[type='submit']"

2025-08-04 16:28:14,668 - INFO - Sending prompt to Ollama: qwen2.5-coder:32b | Payload size : 54966 | prompt : You are an expert in web automation. Given the HTML content of a webpage, identify all interactable elements (e.g., input fields, buttons, checkboxes, radio buttons, dropdowns) and provide their identifiers, categories, XPaths, and CSS selectors in JSON format. Focus only on elements that can be interacted with (e.g., <input>, <button>, <select>). The output must be a JSON array of objects, each with the following fields: - identifier: A meaningful name for the element (e.g., 'username', 'submit_button'). Use id, name, placeholder, or label text if available. - category: The type of element (e.g., 'input_field', 'button', 'checkbox', 'radio', 'dropdown'). - xpath: The XPath to locate the element. - css_selector: The CSS selector to locate the element. Ensure XPaths and CSS selectors are precise and unique. Avoid non-interactable elements like , , or static text. Return only the JSON array, without any additional text or markdown. Example output:

    "identifier": "username",
    "category": "input_field",
    "xpath": "//input[@id='username' or @name='username']",
    "css_selector": "input#username"
    "identifier": "submit_button",
    "category": "button",
    "xpath": "//button[@type='submit']",
    "css_selector": "button[type='submit']"

2025-08-04 16:28:22,552 - INFO - Sending prompt to Ollama: qwen2.5-coder:32b | Payload size : 3306 | prompt : You are an expert in web automation. Given the HTML content of a webpage, identify all interactable elements (e.g., input fields, buttons, checkboxes, radio buttons, dropdowns) and provide their identifiers, categories, XPaths, and CSS selectors in JSON format. Focus only on elements that can be interacted with (e.g., <input>, <button>, <select>). The output must be a JSON array of objects, each with the following fields: - identifier: A meaningful name for the element (e.g., 'username', 'submit_button'). Use id, name, placeholder, or label text if available. - category: The type of element (e.g., 'input_field', 'button', 'checkbox', 'radio', 'dropdown'). - xpath: The XPath to locate the element. - css_selector: The CSS selector to locate the element. Ensure XPaths and CSS selectors are precise and unique. Avoid non-interactable elements like , , or static text. Return only the JSON array, without any additional text or markdown. Example output:
